With landmark acts like RERA proving invaluable in building a strong foundation, further reforms that will catalyse growth in the domestic real estate sector are needed in 2023

With RERA having brought about a raft of positive changes within the Indian real estate sector, its participants are now eagerly anticipating further measures from the government that would help drive the next leg of growth. Counted amongst the top three sectors that contribute directly and indirectly towards the Indian economy, the real estate sector needs a policy push that could propel it to reach the $1 trillion mark by 2030. Towards this end, outlined below are four key suggestions that if implemented, could drive more investments, increase organic demand and provide a big fillip to India's vision of Housing for All in the new year.

According the real estate sector with an industry status

Even though the affordable housing segment received industry status back in 2018, real estate sector participants have been battling for a similar treatment for the entire space since many years. Such an overarching move would mean inclusion in Central and State industrial policy, unlocking a

In a step towards bringing more structure to the real estate market, the National Association of Realtors in India plans to train over one lakh real estate professionals by 2025 through various programmes.

"NAR provides training and education programmes and certification courses under its extended arm, the Indian Institute of Real Estate. Recently, Maharashtra RERA became the first authority to officially signup with IIRE and NAR India for formal education to enter the real estate sector," said Sameer Arora, President, NAR.

After two years of recovery post the COVID-19 induced global financial selloff, central banks around the world are paring down stimulus and increasing repo rates in the fight against rising inflation. As a result, notable technology companies have been downsizing their workforce in a bid to reduce their operational expenses, signalling the end of their glorious expansion drive over the past two decades. Other industries too are trimming manpower in order to stay profitable in the current business environment, roiling the job market further and compelling employees to reconsider their career selection.

Real estate entering golden era: NAR

Bengaluru, Aug 6 (UNI) The National Association of Realtors' President Samir Arora on Saturday said though the real estate industry fell short of Prime Minister's vision of 20 million homes by 2020, things are looking rosy with the industry poised to enter into its golden era after being down for the last 8 years.

"20 million homes by 2022 was the PM's vision. We are still a little short as an industry, But don't forget those three years also were the pandemic years, and few things were delayed, but under the PMAY, housing for all picked up a huge momentum. This was possible because of the interaction the government had with us," he said replying to a UNI query here. Further Arora said, "If you look at the overall real estate economy. I think there has been tremendous progress, and based on the indicators available and the real estate performance in the last 9 months, I think real estate is entering into its golden era after being down for eight

The PM's vision of targeting middle class and luxury houses together will do well in the next 4-5 years, Arora said. "Luxury houses also have taken off hugely and so have the affordable houses. Houses at the mid segment have been doing the best in the last few months," he said. Truely speaking, it is a tremendous progress but a long way to go, considering the pending demands of the industry like GST rationalisation, one-nation-one-license and Input Tax Credit,

RE Sector Experts confident in further growth in demand for Western Suburbs in the coming years. Capturing Over 50% Market Share in MMR's Sales for 2023

POSTED BY: SACHIN MURDESHWAR JUNE 22, 2023

Dear Sir/Madam,

MUMBAI, 22nd JUNE, 2023 (GPN): - Leading experts in the real estate sector show confidence in a substantial growth in the demand for properties within the Western Suburbs of the Mumbai Metropolitan Region (MMR) by the year 2025. With the current upward trajectory, the Western Suburbs are set to capture over 50% of the market share in MMR's sales for the year 2023.

Several factors have contributed to the rise of the Western Suburbs' market share in MMR's sales. Like, the development of infrastructure projects making it an attractive location for homebuyers and investors, the presence of established and emerging employment hubs, such as Bandra Kurla Complex (BKC), Oshiwara District Centre (ODC), The availability of lifestyle amenities and, the relatively easy connectivity to the commercial districts of South Mumbai.
